Lee Health Expands Pain Management Services Program
Experienced Team Focuses on Chronic and Acute Pain

(Fort Myers, Fla. - April 17, 2019) --- To better meet the needs of patients suffering from severe and debilitating pain, Lee Health has expanded its pain management program and is excited to announce eight new providers who have joined the revamped program.

Lee Health's pain management program is focused on providing treatment for patients living with intense and chronic pain to help them live happier, healthier lives. This team is committed to innovative care, patient education and personalized services for acute and chronic pain management across a wide variety of conditions including:

- Spinal pain
- Disease-related pain
- Trauma/injuries
- Pain syndromes
- Cancer

Our team works closely with specialists within Lee Health and across the community, including orthopedic surgeons, neurosurgeons, neurologists, psychiatrists, psychologists, physical therapists and primary care physicians to ensure care is optimally coordinated. Pain management specialists help patients suffering from chronic and debilitating pain live fuller lives by using a comprehensive approach that focuses on improving lifestyles. Lee Health provides comprehensive, alternative, and complementary pain management services that include a full evaluation, treatment and follow-ups for a wide range of pain conditions. Patients also benefit from our technology and skill as well as a comforting environment and personalized service that emphasizes respect and compassion.

The new providers are:

- Luis Guerrero, M.D.
Dr. Guerrero specializes in sports medicine and interventional pain management. He earned his medical degree from Universidad Iberoamericana in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic and most recently worked as an attending physician at MedStar National Rehabilitation Network in Washington, D.C. He has also been a physician for several professional sports teams in the Washington, D.C area including the Washington Wizards, Washington Nationals and the DC United of Major League Soccer.

- Junaid Kamal, M.D.
 Dr. Kamal has 13 years of experience as a full-time attending physician in anesthesia and pain management and is board-certified in both specialties. His focus is multidisciplinary interventional chronic pain management. He most recently worked as a pain management staff physician at the Interventional Pain Management Center as part of the Eastern Maine Health System in Bangor, Maine.
- Marc Rosenblatt, D.O.
 Dr. Rosenblatt specializes in spine, neck and back pain along with rehabilitation and sports medicine. He has 38 years' experience in interventional practice and is board-certified in pain medicine and physical medicine and rehabilitation. Before joining Lee Health, he served as director of the Spine Institute at St. Mary's General Hospital in Passaic, New Jersey and as an attending physician at Beth Israel Medical Center's Spine Institute of New York.
- Ramone Yousif, M.D.
 Dr. Yousif specializes in anesthesiology and pain medicine and is board-certified in both. He completed his medical residency and interventional pain medicine fellowship at SUNY Upstate Medical University in Syracuse, NY. He most recently worked as an interventional pain management physician in private practice in Springfield, Ohio.
- Sabine Beaugris, PA-C
 Beaugris is a certified physician assistant who has served in diverse surgery departments in New York and Florida, most recently at Gulf Coast Medical Center. In these roles, she managed patients before and after surgery. She holds a master's degree from the University of Nebraska Medical Center.
- Alex Lagodzinski, APRN
 Lagodzinski is an advanced practitioner who has served in a number of nursing capacities in Iowa and across the United States and has worked as a firefighter and paramedic. He holds a master's degree from Graceland University.
